REGISTRATION OF INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS

New industrial designs are registrable.

9. (1) Subject to this Order, an industrial design which is new may, upon application by the person claiming to be the owner, be registered in respect of any article or set of articles specified in the application.

(2) An industrial design for which an application for registration is made shall not be regarded as new if it is the same as —

(a) an industrial design that has been registered in pursuance of a prior application filed or having effect in Brunei Darussalam, whether or not that industrial design has been registered in respect of the same article for which the application is made or in respect of any other article; or

(b) an industrial design that has been disclosed in Brunei Darussalam or elsewhere before the filing date, whether or not it has been published in respect of the same article for which the application is made or in respect of any other article, or if it differs from such an industrial design only in immaterial details or in features which are variants commonly used in the trade.

(3) The Registrar may, in such cases as may be prescribed, direct that for the purpose of deciding whether an industrial design is new an application for registration shall be treated as made on a date earlier or later than that on which it was in fact made.

Industrial designs not registrable if appearance of article not material.

10. An industrial design is not registrable in respect of an article if aesthetic considerations are not normally taken into account to a material extent by persons acquiring or using articles of that description, and would not be so taken into account if the industrial design were to be applied to the article.

Industrial designs contrary to public order or morality not registrable.

11. (1) Subject to subsection (2), an industrial design the publication or use of which would be contrary to public order or morality is not registrable.

(2) The publication or use of an industrial design shall not be considered to be contrary to public order merely because it is prohibited by any law in force in Brunei Darussalam.

12. (1) An application for the registration of an industrial design shall not be refused, and the registration of an industrial design shall not be invalidated by reason only of —

Provisions as to confidential disclosure, etc.

(b) the disclosure of the industrial design in breach of good faith within twelve months by any person other than the owner of the industrial design;

(c) in the case of a new or original textile industrial design intended for registration, the acceptance of a first and confidential order for goods bearing the industrial design; or

(d) the communication of the industrial design by the owner within twelve months to a government department or to any person authorised by a government department to consider the merits of the industrial design, or of anything done in consequence of such a communication.

(2) An application for the registration of an industrial design shall not be refused, and the registration of an industrial design shall not be invalidated by reason only —

(b) that after any such display as is mentioned in paragraph (a), and during the period of the exhibition, a representation of the industrial design, or any article to which the industrial design has been applied, has been displayed by any person without the consent of the owner; or

(c) that a representation of the industrial design has been published in consequence of any such display as is mentioned in paragraph (a),

Provisions as to artistic works.

13. (1) Subject to subsection (2), where an application is made by or with the consent of the owner of copyright in an artistic work for the registration of a corresponding industrial design, the industrial design shall not be treated for the purposes of this Order as being other than new by reason only of any use previously made of the artistic work.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if the previous use consisted of or included the sale, letting for hire, or offer or exposure for sale or hire, of articles to which had been applied industrially —

(a) the industrial design in question; or

(b) an industrial design differing from it only in immaterial details or in features which are variants commonly used in the trade, and that previous use was made by or with the consent of the copyright owner.

{3} Provision may be made by rules as to the circumstances in which an industrial design is to be regarded for the purpose of this section as applied industrially to articles or any description of articles.

Provisions as to registration of same design in respect of other articles, etc.

14. (1) Where the registered owner of a design registered in respect of any article makes an application —

(a) for registration in respect of one or more other articles, of the registered design; or

(b) for registration in respect of the same or one or more other articles, of a design consisting of the registered design with modifications or variations not sufficient to alter the character or substantially affect the identity thereof, the application shall not be refused, and the registration made on the application shall not be invalidated, by reason only of the previous registration or publication of the registered design:

Provided that the right in a design registered by virtue of this section shall not extend beyond the end of the period and any extended period for which the right subsists in the original registered design.

(2) Where any person makes an application for the registration of a design in respect of any article and either –

(a) the design has been previously registered by another person in respect of some other article; or

(b) the design to which the application relates consists of a design previously registered by another person in respect of the same or some other article with modifications or variations not sufficient to alter the character or substantially affect the identity thereof, then, if at any time while the application is pending the applicant becomes the registered owner of the design previously registered, subsection (1) shall apply as if at the time of making the application the applicant had been the registered owner of that design.

15. (1) An application for registration of an industrial design shall be filed with the Registrar in the prescribed manner.

(b) comply with any prescribed conditions.

Filing date.

16. {1} Subject to this Order, the filing date of an application for registration of an industrial design is the latest of the dates on which –

(b) the prescribed filing fee has been paid.

{2} If the prescribed filing fee has not been paid in accordance with subsection (4) of section 15, the application shall be deemed to have been abandoned.

{3} If a date of filing cannot be accorded under subsection {1}, the Registrar shall give the applicant an opportunity to remedy the deficiencies and if they are not remedied within the prescribed period the application shall be deemed to have been abandoned.

Claim to priority right.

17. {1} A person who has filed an application for registration of an industrial design in, or in respect of, a Paris Convention country or WTO member or his successor in title, has a right of priority, for the purposes of registering the same industrial design under this Order in respect of any or all of the same articles, for a period of six months from the filing date of the first application, subject to compliance with any prescribed conditions.

{2} Any filing of an application for registration of an industrial design in, or in respect of, a Paris Convention country or WTO member which is equivalent to a regular national filing under the law of that Paris Convention country or WTO member, or under any agreement to which it is a party, shall be recognised as giving rise to a right of priority.

(3) A subsequent application for the registration of an industrial design that was the subject of a previous application, and that was filed in or in respect of the same Paris Convention country or WTO member, shall be considered as the first application for the purpose of determining priority if on the filing date of the subsequent application –

(a) the previous application has been withdrawn, abandoned or refused, without having been open to public inspection and without leaving any rights outstanding; and

(b) has not served as a basis for claiming a right of priority.

(4) In this section, "regular national filing" means any filing of an application for registration of an industrial design in, or in respect of, a Paris Convention country or WTO member which is adequate to establish the date on which such application was filed, whatever the result of that application.

(5) An application for the registration of an industrial design filed in, or in respect of, Brunei Darussalam shall give rise to a right of priority with the same effect provided in subsections (1), (2) and (3). Upon filing a subsequent application in, or in respect of, Brunei Darussalam claiming the priority of an earlier application filed in, or in respect of, Brunei Darussalam, the latter shall be deemed to be abandoned and replaced by the former.

18. (1) An applicant who desires to take advantage of the priority of a previous application shall file with the Registrar in the prescribed manner a statement of priority. Claiming priority.

(2) Where a statement of priority is filed in accordance with this section, the applicant shall for the purposes of proceedings before the Registrar be deemed to be entitled to enjoy the right of priority shown in the statement.

(3) Where a declaration claiming priority from an earlier application has been made and where the Registrar is of the opinion that the validity of the claim to priority is relevant to the determination of whether the industrial design is new or involves an inventive step, the applicant or the proprietor of an industrial design granted on the application shall, if requested by the Registrar, furnish in respect of every application specified in the declaration –

(a) its file number; and

(b) either —

(i) a copy of that application duly certified by the authority with which it was filed; or

(ii) a copy of that application accompanied by a statutory declaration or affidavit or otherwise verified to the satisfaction of the Registrar, that the copy corresponds to the original of that application.

Effect of priority right.

19. (1) The right of priority shall have the effect that the filing date of the previous application claimed under section 18 shall be regarded as being the filing date of the application for registration under this Order for the purpose of determining whether the industrial design is new.

(2) Subsection (1) shall not be construed as excluding the power to give directions under subsection (3) of section 9 in relation to the application for registration under this Order.

(3) Where an application for registration of an industrial design is filed under this Order and the priority of a previous application is claimed under section 18, then, notwithstanding anything contained in this Order, the application shall not be refused and the registration of the industrial design under this Order shall not be invalidated by reason only of the fact that the previous application has been published at any time after the filing date of the previous application.

applications.

20. (1) An applicant may withdraw his application for registration of an industrial design by filing a notice of withdrawal with the Registrar before the date on which preparations for publication under section 26 have been completed, as determined by the Registrar.

(2) A notice under this section shall be made in writing and filed in the prescribed manner.

(3) Where a notice is filed in accordance with this section, the application shall be deemed to have been abandoned.

(4) A notice filed in accordance with this section is irrevocable.

deemed abandonment.

21. Where an application for registration of an industrial design is deemed by any provision of this Order to have been abandoned —

(a) the applicant shall continue to enjoy the right of priority under section 19 which he enjoyed immediately before the abandonment: and

{b} no other right may be claimed under this Order in relation to the application.

22. (1) The Attorney General may, with the approval of His Majesty the Sultan and Yang Di-Pertuan, make regulations to provide for extension of time for any period of time specified for the doing of any act in relation to an application for registration or in proceedings under this Order or any rules or regulations made thereunder, not being proceedings in court.

Extensions of time.

(2) The regulations may contain such provision as the Attorney General thinks fit regulating the circumstances in which such an extension may be granted and may also provide for the protection and compensation of persons affected by the grant of extension of time and may authorise the Registrar to grant an extension of time notwithstanding that the period has already expired.

23. (1) The Registrar may amend an application for registration of an industrial design on request made to him by the applicant in the prescribed manner.

Amendment of
applications.

(2) An application for registration of an industrial design shall not be amended under subsection (3.) if, as a result of the amendment, the scope of the application would be increased by the inclusion of any matter that was not in substance disclosed in the application initially filed or if, as a result of the amendment, the initial design was or, if there is more than one, any of the initial designs were altered.

(3) Where a request for amendment of an application for registration of an industrial design has been granted under subsection (1), and the amendment has the effect of excluding one or more industrial designs from the application initially filed, the applicant may at any time while the initial application is pending make a further application for registration of the industrial design or industrial designs so excluded.

(4) Where, after an application for registration has been filed and before the industrial design is registered, a further application is filed by the original applicant or his successor in title in accordance with the regulations in respect of any part of the matter contained in the earlier application and the conditions mentioned in section 15 are satisfied in relation to the new application (without the new application contravening the provisions of subsection (2)), the new application shall be treated as having, as its date of filing, the date of filing the earlier application.

Rights in applications.

24. (1) Sections 32, 33 and 34 apply, with necessary modification, in relation to an application for registration of an industrial design as they apply in relation to a registered industrial design.

(2) In section 33, as it applies in relation to an application for registration of an industrial design, the reference in subsection (1) to the registration of an industrial design shall be construed as a reference to the making of the application.

(3) In section 34, as it applies in relation to a transaction, instrument or event affecting an application for registration of an industrial design, the references to the registration of particulars, and to the making of an application for the registration of particulars, shall be construed as a reference to the giving of written notice to the Registrar of those particulars.

Examination and registration

Examination of applications.

25. (1) If an application for registration of an industrial design has been accorded a filing date under section 16 and has not been withdrawn, the Registrar shall examine the application to determine whether it complies with the requirements of this Order and with the formal requirements.

(2) Where the Registrar determines that there are deficiencies as regards the formal requirements, he shall notify the applicant and give him an opportunity to correct the deficiencies within the prescribed period.

(3) Where after an examination under subsection (1) it is determined that not all the formal requirements have been complied with, the Registrar shall give the applicant an opportunity to make representations and to amend the application within such period as the Registrar may specify so as to comply with those requirements (subject however to subsection (2) of section 23) and, if the applicant fails to do so, the Registrar may refuse the application.

Registration and publication.

26. (1) If on an examination by the Registrar under section 25 an application for registration of an industrial design is found to have satisfied the formal requirements, then as soon as practicable after such examination but subject to section 27, the Registrar shall on payment of the prescribed fee —

(a) register the industrial design by entering the prescribed particulars in the Register;

(b) enter the name of the applicant, or the successor in title to the application, in the Register as the owner of the industrial design;

(c) issue a certificate of registration to the person who is the registered owner of the industrial design at the time the industrial design is registered; and

(d) advertise the fact of such registration and publish a representation of the industrial design by notice in the Gazette.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (d) of subsection (1), advertisement of the registration and publication of the industrial design shall, upon request by the applicant at the time of filing of the application or at any time before the date on which preparations for publication have been completed, be deferred for a period not exceeding twelve months from the date of filing or, if priority is claimed, from the date of priority of the application.

(3) Where a request has been made under subsection (2) for deferment of publication, upon registration of the industrial design, neither the representation of the design nor any file relating to the application shall be open to public inspection. In this case, the Registrar shall publish a mention of the deferment and information identifying the registered owner, indicating the filing date of the application, the length of the period for which deferment has been requested and any other prescribed particulars.

(4) At the expiry of the period of deferment, the Registrar shall publish the registered industrial design.

(5) The institution of legal proceedings on the basis of a registered industrial design during the period of deferment of publication shall be subject to the condition that the information contained in the Register and in the file relating to the application has been communicated to the person against whom the action is brought.

27. (1) The Registrar may by notice in the prescribed manner, stating the reason for his refusal, refuse an application for registration of an industrial design if, after an examination by him under section 25 and after giving the applicant the opportunity to correct any deficiencies as provided for in that section, he determines —

Refusal of applications.

(a) that the application does not satisfy the formal requirements;

(c) the prescribed fee for the registration of the industrial design has not been paid.

{2} Where the Registrar refuses an application for registration of an industrial design under this section —

(a) the applicant shall continue to enjoy the right of priority under section 18 which he enjoyed immediately before such refusal; and

(b) no other right may be claimed under this Order in relation to the application.

Formality examination.

28. Except as expressly provided to the contrary, nothing in this Order shall be construed as imposing any obligation upon the Registrar to consider or have regard to, for the purpose of determining whether to accept an application for registration of an industrial design, any question as to —

(a) the registrability of the industrial design;

(b) whether the applicant is entitled to any priority claimed in the application; or

(c) whether the industrial design is properly represented in the application.

Period of registration.

29. (1) The initial period of registration of an industrial design is five years beginning on the filing date of the application for registration.

(2) The period of registration of an industrial design may be extended for additional periods of five years each but the total period of registration may not exceed fifteen years beginning on the filing date of the application for registration.

{3} If the owner of a registered industrial design wishes to renew the period of registration for a further period of five years, the prescribed renewal fee shall not be paid earlier than three months immediately preceding the end of the current period of registration.

{4} If the renewal fee is not paid in accordance with subsection {3}, the registration of the industrial design shall cease to have effect at the end of the current period of registration.

(5) If, during the period of six months immediately following the end of the period specified in subsection (4), the renewal fee and any prescribed additional fee are paid, the registration of the industrial design shall be treated as if it had never ceased to have effect and accordingly –

(a) anything done under or in relation to any rights in or under the industrial design by or with the consent of the owner during that period shall be deemed to be valid;

(b) any act which would have constituted an infringement of the industrial design if the registration had not ceased to have effect shall be deemed to constitute such an infringement; and

(c) any act which would have constituted Government use of the industrial design if the registration had not ceased to have effect shall be deemed to constitute Government use.

30. (1) The registration of an industrial design may be surrendered by the registered owner in respect of all or any of the articles for which the industrial design is registered.

Surrender of registration.

(2) Provision may be made by rules –

(a) as to the manner and effect of a surrender; and

(b) for protecting the interest of other persons having a right in the industrial design.

RIGHTS IN INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS

31. (1) Subject to this Order, the registration of an industrial design under this Order gives to the registered owner the exclusive right –

Rights conferred by registration.

(a) to make in Brunei Darussalam or import –

(i) for sale or hire; or

(ii) for use for the purpose of trade or business; or

(b) to sell, hire, or offer or expose for sale or hire, in Brunei Darussalam, any article in respect of which the industrial design is registered and to which that industrial design or an industrial design not substantially different from it has been applied.

(2) The right in an industrial design is infringed by any person who, without the licence of the registered owner —

(a) does, or authorises another person to do, anything which under subsection (1) is the exclusive right of the registered owner;

(b) makes, or authorises another person to make, anything for enabling any article referred to in subsection (1) to be made in Brunei Darussalam or elsewhere;

(c) does, or authorises another person to do, anything in relation to a kit that would constitute an infringement of the industrial design if it had been done in relation to the assembled article; or

(d) makes, or authorises another person to make, anything for enabling a kit to be made or assembled, in Brunei Darussalam or elsewhere, if the assembled article would be such an article as is referred to in subsection (1).

(3) The right in an industrial design is not infringed by any act done by any person —

(a) solely for the purpose of research or for private and domestic use;

(b) for teaching purposes, in the course of instruction or of preparation for instruction, provided it was done by a person giving or receiving the instruction;

(c) for the purpose of evaluation or analysis;

(d) that consists of the importation, use or disposal of, or of the offer to dispose of, any registered industrial design or any product obtained by means of a registered industrial design, which was produced by or with the consent (conditional or otherwise) of the registered owner of the industrial design or any person licensed by him; and for this purpose "registered industrial design" includes an industrial design registered in any country or territory outside Brunei Darussalam in respect of the same or substantially the same industrial design as that for which an industrial design has been registered under this Order.

(4) The right in an industrial design is not infringed by the reproduction of a feature of the industrial design which, under paragraph (b) of the definition of "industrial design" in subsection (1) of section 2, is not taken into account for the purpose of determining whether the industrial design is registrable.

(5) In this section, "kit" means a complete or substantially complete set of components intended to be assembled into an article.

32. (1) An industrial design and any right in or under it is property within the meaning of paragraph (a) of the definition of "property" in subsection (1) of section 3 of the Interpretation and General Clauses Act and, subject to this Order, is transferable by assignment or transmission in the same way as any other property, in accordance with subsections (2) to (6). It is so transferable either in connection with the goodwill of a business or independently.

design.
Cap. 4.

(2) Subject to this Order, any industrial design, and any right in or under it, may be assigned or mortgaged.

(3) Subject to this Order, a licence may be granted under any industrial design for the use of the industrial design and —

(a) to the extent that the licence so provides, a sub-licence may be granted under any such licence and any such licence or sub-licence may be assigned or mortgaged; and

(b) any such licence or sub-licence shall legally vest in the same way as any other property.

(4) Any assignment or mortgage of an industrial design or any right in or under it, whether total or partial, is not effective unless it is in writing and signed by or on behalf of the assignor or, in the case of a body corporate, so signed or under the seal of that body.

(5) An assignment of an industrial design or of a share in it, and an exclusive licence granted under any industrial design, may confer on the assignee or licensee the right of the assignor or licensor to bring proceedings for a previous infringement.

(6) A licence granted in respect of industrial design rights by the owner of the rights is binding on every successor in title to the interest in the rights of such owner, except —

(a) a purchaser in good faith for valuable consideration and without notice, actual or constructive, of the licence; and

(b) a person deriving title from such a purchaser, to the same extent as the licence was binding on the grantor.

Co-ownership of industrial designs.

33. (1) Subject to any agreement to the contrary, where there is more than one registered owner of an industrial design, each of them shall be entitled to an undivided share in the industrial design.

(2) Subject to this section and to any agreement to the contrary, where there is more than one registered owner of an industrial design, each of them shall be entitled, by himself or his agent, to do in respect of the industrial design, for his own benefit and without the consent of or the need to account to any other registered owner, any act which would apart from this subsection and section 36 constitute an infringement of that industrial design; and any such act shall be deemed not to constitute an infringement of that industrial design.

(3) Subject to section 41 and to any agreement to the contrary, where there is more than one registered owner of an industrial design, no registered owner shall, without the consent of each of the others, grant a licence under the industrial design or assign or mortgage a share in it.

(4) Nothing in subsections (1) or (2) affects the mutual rights or obligations of trustees or of the personal representatives of a deceased person, or their rights or obligations as such.

Transactions
affecting rights in industrial designs.

34. (1) Any person who claims to have acquired any right in or under an industrial design by virtue of any transaction, instrument or event to which this section applies is entitled as against any other person who claims to have acquired that right by virtue of an earlier transaction, instrument or event to which this section applies if, at the time of the later transaction, instrument or event —

(a) application has not been made for the registration of particulars concerning the earlier transaction, instrument or event; and

(b) the person claiming under the later transaction, instrument or event did not know of the earlier transaction, instrument or event.

(2) Subsection (1) also applies to the case where any person claims to have acquired any right in or under an industrial design by virtue of a transaction, instrument or event to which this section applies, and that right is incompatible with any such right acquired by virtue of an earlier transaction, instrument or event to which this section applies.

(3) This section applies to the following transactions, instruments and events —

(a) the assignment of an industrial design or a right in or under it;

(b) the mortgage of an industrial design or the granting of security over it;

35. (1) A person who in Brunei Darussalam before the filing date of an application for registration of an industrial design —

Rights of third parties to continue use of industrial designs.

(a) does in good faith an act which would have constituted an infringement of the industrial design if it had been registered at the time the act was done; or

(b) makes in good faith effective and serious preparations to do such an act, has the rights specified in subsection (2).

(2) The rights referred to in subsection (1) are —

(a) the right to continue to do or, as the case may be, to do the act referred to in subsection (1);

(b) if such act was done, or such preparations had been made, by an individual in the course of a business —

(i) the right to assign the right to do the act or to transfer such right on death; and

(ii) the right to authorise the doing of the act by any of his partners for the time being in the business in the course of which the act was done or the preparations had been made; and

(c) if such act was done, or such preparations had been made, by a body corporate in the course of a business, the right to assign the right to do the act or to transmit such right on the body's dissolution, and the doing of such act by virtue of this subsection shall not constitute an infringement of the industrial design concerned.

(3) The rights specified in subsection (2) shall not include the right to grant a licence to any person to do an act referred to in subsection (1).

(4) Where an article is disposed of to another person in exercise of a right conferred by subsection (2), that other person and any person claiming through him may deal with the article in the same way as if it had been disposed of by the owner of the industrial design concerned.

PART IV

USE BY GOVERNMENT OF INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS

Use by Government
for security, defence, etc.

36. (1) An act done by or on behalf of the Government, in relation to an industrial design, is not an infringement of the rights in that industrial design if it appears to the Government necessary or expedient that the act was done —

(a) to avoid prejudice to the security or defence of Brunei Darussalam or for the efficient prosecution of any war in which Brunei Darussalam may be engaged;

(b) to assist in the exercise of powers and the implementation of measures during a period of national emergency or other circumstances of extreme urgency; or

(c) for public non-commercial purposes, and before doing that act, the Government, having taken all reasonable steps to do so, has been unable to obtain the licence of the owner of the industrial design, on reasonable terms, to do the act.

(2) A person may be authorised to act on behalf of the Government under subsection (1) before or after the act in respect of which he was authorised has been done.

(3) In this section, "period of national emergency" means any period beginning with such date as may be declared by the Attorney General by order published in the Gazette to be the commencement, and ending with such date as may be so declared to be the termination, of a period of national emergency for the purpose of this section.

37. (1) The right to use an industrial design under section 36 —

Nature and scope of rights under section 36.

(a) is both non-exclusive and non-assignable;

(b) is limited to the purposes specified in that section;

(c) is subject to the terms of any authorisation under that section;

(d) does not permit the sale of the industrial design to the public; and

(e) is limited to use of the industrial design predominantly in Brunei Darussalam.

(2) An act done under section 36 in relation to an industrial design shall not be taken into account in calculating the protection period of that industrial design.

(3) Where an exclusive licence is in force in relation to any industrial design, sections 36, 38 and 39 shall have effect as if for references to the owner of the industrial design there were references to the exclusive licensee.

38. (1) Where an act has been done under section 36 in relation to an industrial design, the Government shall, as soon as practicable, inform the owner of the rights in that industrial design that it has been done and give him such information about it as he may require.

Duty to inform owner.

(2) Nothing in subsection (1) requires the Government to inform or disclose information to the owner if doing so would, or might reasonably be expected to, prejudice the security or defence of Brunei Darussalam.

39. Where an act has been done under section 36 in relation to an industrial design, the Government shall pay to the owner of the industrial design such remuneration as may be agreed or determined by a method agreed between them.

Owner of industrial design entitled to remuneration.

40. (1) Any person aggrieved by any act done by or on behalf of the Government under section 36 may appeal to the High Court which may make such order as it thinks fit.

Appeal to High Court.

(2) On any such appeal —

(a) the Government; and

(b) with the leave of the High Court, any other person, is entitled to appear and to be heard.

PART V

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS

Determination of rights after registration.

41. (1 After an industrial design has been registered, any person having or claiming a proprietary interest in or under it may refer to the court the question —

(a) who is or are the true owner or owners of the industrial design;

(b) whether the industrial design should have been registered in the name of the person or persons in whose name or names it was registered; or

(c) whether any right in or under the industrial design should be transferred or granted to any other person or persons, and the court shall determine the question and make such order as it thinks fit to give effect to the determination.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), an order under that subsection may contain provision —

(a) directing that the name of the person by whom the reference is made shall be entered in the Register as the owner or one of the owners of the industrial design (whether or not to the exclusion of any other person);

(b) directing the registration of a transaction, instrument or event by virtue of which that person has acquired any right in or under the industrial design;

(c) granting any licence or other right in or under the industrial design; or

(d) directing any person registered as the owner of the industrial design or any person having any right in or under it to do anything specified in the order as necessary to carry out the other provisions of the order.

(3) If any person to whom a direction has been given under paragraph (d) of subsection (2) fails to do anything necessary for carrying out any such direction within fourteen days after the date of the order containing the direction, the court may, on application made to it by any person in whose favour or on whose reference the order was made, authorise him to do that thing on behalf of the person to whom the direction was given.

(4) If a reference under this section is made after the end of the period of two years beginning with the date of registration of the industrial design to which the reference relates, no order shall be made under subsection (1) transferring any right in or under the industrial design from the person registered as the owner of the industrial design to any other person on the ground that the person so registered was not entitled to be registered as the owner unless it is shown that he knew at the time of the registration or, as the case may be, of the transfer of the industrial design to him, that he was not entitled to be registered as the owner.

(5) Where a question is referred to the court under this section, no order shall be made under subsections (2) or (4) unless notice of the reference is given to all persons registered as owner of the industrial design or as having a right in or under the registered industrial design except those who are parties to the reference.

42. (1) Where an order is made under section 41 that a registered industrial design shall be transferred from any person or persons (the old owner or owners) to one or more persons (whether or not including an old owner), then, except in a case falling within subsection (2), any licences or other rights granted or created by the old owner or owners shall, subject to section 32 and to the provisions of the order, continue in force and be treated as granted by the person or persons to whom the industrial design was ordered to be transferred (the new owner or owners).

transfer of registered industrial design under section 41.

(2) Where an order is so made that a registered industrial design shall be transferred from the old owner or owners to one or more persons (none of whom was an old owner) on the ground that the industrial design was registered in the name of a person not entitled to be registered as an owner, any licences or other rights in or under the industrial design shall, subject to subsection (3) and to the provisions of the order, lapse on the registration of that person or those persons as the new owner or owners of the industrial design.

(3) Where an order is so made that a registered industrial design shall be transferred as mentioned in subsection (2) and, before particulars of the reference resulting in the making of the order are entered in the Register, the old owner or owners or a licensee —

(a) does in good faith an act which would have constituted an infringement of the industrial design if particulars of the reference had been registered at the time the act was done; or

(b) makes in good faith effective and serious preparations to do such an act, the old owner or owners or the licensee shall on making a request to the new owner or owners within the prescribed period be entitled to be granted a licence, but not an exclusive licence, to continue to do the act or, as the case may be, to do the act.

(4) Any such licence shall be granted for a reasonable period and on reasonable terms.

(5) The new owner or owners of the industrial design or any person claiming that he is entitled to be granted any such licence may refer to the court the question whether that person is so entitled and whether any such period is, or any such terms are, reasonable, and the court shall determine the question and may, if it considers it appropriate, order the grant of such a licence.

Licences
order of court.

43. Any order made under subsection (2) of section 41 or subsection (5) of section 42 for the grant of a licence shall, without prejudice to any other method of enforcement, have effect as if it were a deed, executed by the owner of the industrial design and all other necessary parties, granting a licence in accordance with the order.

Revocation on ground of public order or morality.

44. (1) Any person may at any time after an industrial design has been registered under this Order refer to the court for determination the question of whether, having regard to section 11, the industrial design is a registrable industrial design.

(2) Without prejudice to the jurisdiction of the court apart from this subsection to determine any such question, the court shall have jurisdiction to do so.

(3) If the court determines that the industrial design is not a registrable industrial design under section 11, it shall order the registration of the industrial design to be revoked.

(4) Any person may oppose a reference made under subsection (1).

45. The court may, on application by any person, order the registration of an industrial design to be revoked on the ground that, at the time of its registration, the industrial design was not new or was not registrable for any other reason. Revocation on ground that industrial design not registrable.

46. (1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), the court may, on application by any person, order the registration of an industrial design to be revoked on the ground that the person whose name is entered in the Register as the owner of the industrial design is not entitled to be registered as the owner. Revocation on ground that person not entitled to be registered as owner.

(2) An application under subsection (1) may be made only by a person found by the court on a reference under section 41 to be entitled to be registered as the owner of the industrial design.

(3) Where the reference under section 41 was commenced after the end of the period of two years beginning with the date of registration of the industrial design, the court may not order the revocation of the registration of the industrial design under this section unless the applicant shows that the person whose name is entered in the Register as the owner of the industrial design knew at the time of its registration or of the registration of the transfer of the industrial design to him that he was not entitled to be registered as the owner.

47. Without affecting transactions past and closed, where an order is made under sections 44, 45 or 46 that the registration of an industrial design be revoked, the Registrar shall rectify the Register accordingly and the registration of the industrial design shall be deemed never to have been made. Effect of revocation.

48. (1) An infringement of the right in an industrial design is actionable by the registered owner and in any action in respect of such an infringement all such relief, by way of damages, injunction, account of profits or otherwise, shall be available as is available in proceedings in respect of the infringement of other proprietary rights. Infringement proceedings.

(2) The court shall not, in respect of the same infringement, both award damages and order an account of profits.

(3) No proceedings shall be taken in respect of an infringement of an industrial design committed before the date on which the certificate of registration of the industrial design was issued under section 26.

(4) Subject to this section and to any agreement to the contrary, where there is more than one registered owner of an industrial design, each of them shall be entitled to bring proceedings in respect of any infringement of the industrial design.

(5) In the application of section 31 to an industrial design of which there is more than one registered owner, the reference to the registered owner shall be construed —

(a) in relation to any act, as a reference to that registered owner or those registered owners who, by virtue of section 33 or any agreement referred to in that section, is or are entitled to do that act without its constituting an infringement; and

(b) in relation to any consent, as a reference to that registered owner or those registered owners who, by virtue of section 33 or any such agreement, is or are the proper person or persons to give such consent.

(6) Infringement proceedings may be brought by any co-owner, but he may not, without the leave of the court, proceed with the action unless the other of them, or each of the others, has either been joined as a plaintiff or added as a defendant. A co-owner who has been added as a defendant shall not be made liable for any costs in the action unless he has taken part in the proceedings. Nothing in this subsection affects the granting of interlocutory relief on the application of a single co-owner alone.

Exercise of
rights.

49. (1) An exclusive licence may provide that the licensee shall have, to such extent as may be provided by the licence, the same rights in respect of matters occurring after the grant of the licence as if the licence had been an assignment. Where or to the extent that such provision is made, the licensee is entitled, subject to the provisions of the licence and to subsections (2) to (8), to bring infringement proceedings in his own name, against any person other than the owner.

(2) Any such rights of an exclusive licensee are concurrent with those of the owner; and references in this Order to the owner which relate to infringement shall be construed accordingly.

(3) In an action brought by an exclusive licensee under this section, a defendant may avail himself of any defence which would have been available to him if the action had been brought by the owner.

(4) Where infringement proceedings brought by the owner or an exclusive licensee relate wholly or partly to an infringement in respect of which they have concurrent rights of action, the owner or, as the case may be, the exclusive licensee may not, without the leave of the court, proceed with the action unless the other of them has either been joined as a plaintiff or added as a defendant. Nothing in this subsection affects the granting of interlocutory relief on the application of an owner or exclusive licensee alone.

(5) A person who has been added as a defendant under subsection (4) shall not be made liable for any costs in the action unless he has taken part in the proceedings.

(6) Where infringement proceedings are brought which relate wholly or partly to an infringement in respect of which the owner and an exclusive licensee have or had concurrent rights of action –

(a) the court shall in assessing damages take into account –

(i) the terms of the licence; and

(ii) any pecuniary remedy already awarded or available to either of them in respect of the infringement;

(b) no account of profits shall be directed if an award of damages has been made, or an account of profits has been directed, in favour of the other of them in respect of the infringement; and

(c) the court shall, if an account of profits is directed, apportion the profits between them as the court considers just, subject to any agreement between them.

This subsection applies whether or not the owner and the exclusive licensee are both parties to the action; and if they are not both parties the court may give such directions as it thinks fit as to the extent to which the party to the proceedings is to hold the proceeds of any pecuniary remedy on behalf of the other.

(7) The owner of the industrial design shall notify any exclusive licensee who has a concurrent right of action before applying for an order under section 53; and the court may on the application of the licensee make such order under that section as it thinks fit having regard to the terms of the licence.

(8) Subsections (4) to (7) have effect subject to any agreement to the contrary between the owner and the exclusive licensee.

Application of section 49 to exclusive licensee.

50. Section 49 applies to an exclusive licensee of the right in an industrial design under a licence that was in force at the time the conduct constituting an infringement of those rights took place.

General restriction on recovery of damages or profits.

51. (1) In proceedings for the infringement of an industrial design damages shall not be awarded, and no order shall be made for an account of profits, against a defendant who proves that at the date of the infringement he was not aware, and had no reasonable grounds for believing, that the industrial design was registered.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1), a person shall not be taken to have been so aware or to have had reasonable grounds for so believing by reason only of the application to an article, or to any printed matter accompanying an article, of the word "registered", or any word or words or abbreviation expressing or implying that an industrial design has been registered, unless the registration number of the industrial design accompanied such word, words or abbreviation.

(3) In proceedings for infringement of an industrial design the court may, if it thinks fit, refuse to award any damages or make any such order in respect of an infringement committed during any further period specified under subsection (5) of section 29, but before the payment of the renewal fee and any additional fee prescribed for the purposes of that subsection.

Further restriction on recovery of damages or profits for certain infringements.

52. Where a person becomes the registered owner or one of the registered owners or an exclusive licensee of an industrial design under a transaction, instrument or event to which section 34 applies, then unless —

(a) an application to register the prescribed particulars of such transaction, instrument or event is made before the end of the period of six months beginning with its date; or

(b) the court is satisfied that it was not practicable to make such an application before the end of that period and that it was made as soon as practicable after the end of that period, he is not entitled to damages or an account of profits in respect of any infringement occurring after the date of the transaction, instrument or event and before the prescribed particulars of the transaction, instrument or event are registered.

Order for delivery up of infringing articles, etc.

53. (1) The proprietor of an industrial design may apply to the court for an order for the delivery up to him or such other person as the court may direct of —

(a) any infringing article; or

(b) anything specifically designed or adapted for the making of any infringing article, knowing or having reason to believe that the thing has been or is to be used to make any infringing article, which that person has in his possession, custody, or control in the course of a business.

(2) An application under subsection (1) may not be made after the end of the period of six years from the date on which the article or thing was made unless, during the whole or part of that period, the registered owner was under a disability or was prevented by fraud or concealment from discovering the facts entitling him to make the application, in which case an application may be made at any time before the end of the period of six years from the date on which he ceased to be under a disability or, as the case may be, could with reasonable diligence have discovered those facts.

(3) No such order shall be made unless the court also makes, or it appears to the court that there are grounds for making, an order under section 54.

(4) A person to whom any infringing article or thing is delivered up in pursuance of an order under this section shall, if an order under section 54 is not made, retain them pending the making of an order, or the decision not to make an order, under that section.

(5) Nothing in this section affects any other power of the court.

(6) In subsection (2), "disability" has the same meaning as in subsection (2) of section 4 of the Emergency (Limitation) Order, 1991.

54. (1) Where any infringing article or thing has been delivered up in pursuance of an order under section 53, an application may be made to the court —

Order for disposal.

(a) for an order that they be destroyed or forfeited to such person as the court may think fit; or

(b) for a decision that no such order should be made.

(2) In considering what order (if any) should be made, the court shall consider whether other remedies available in an action for infringement would be adequate to compensate the registered owner and any licensee and protect their interests.

(3) Provision may be made by rules of court as to the service of notice on persons having an interest in the articles or thing, and any such person is entitled —

(a) to appear in proceedings for an order under this section, whether or not he was served with notice; and

(b) to appeal against any order made, whether or not he appeared, and an order shall not take effect until the end of the period within which notice of an appeal may be given or, if before the end of that period notice of appeal has been given, until the final determination or abandonment of the proceedings on the appeal.

(4) Where there is more than one person interested in the article or thing, the court shall make such order as it thinks just.

(5) If the court decides that no order should be made under this section, the person in whose possession, custody or control the article or thing was before being delivered up is entitled to its return.

(6) References in this section to a person having an interest in any article or thing include any person in whose favour an order could be made under this section or under any law which makes similar provision in relation to the infringement of trade marks, copyright, rights in performances or industrial design rights.

Declaration as to non-infringement.

55. Without prejudice to the jurisdiction of the court to make a declaration apart from this section, a declaration that an act does not, or that a proposed act would not, constitute an infringement of an industrial design may be made by the court in any proceedings between the person doing or proposing to do the act and the registered owner, notwithstanding that no assertion to the contrary has been made by the registered owner, if it is shown that —

(a) such person has applied in writing to the registered owner for a written acknowledgement to the effect of the declaration claimed, and has furnished him with full written particulars of that act or proposed act; and

(b) the registered owner has refused or failed to give any such acknowledgement.

Certificate of contested validity of registration.

56. (1) If in any proceedings before the court the validity of the registration of an industrial design is contested and that registration is found by the court to be valid, the court may certify the finding and the fact that the validity of the registration was so contested.
